Operational objective 1: Advocacy, awareness raising and education

CONS-O-3

Number of civil society organizations (CSOs) and science and technology institutions (STIs) participating in the Convention processes

Global target

A steady growth in the participation of CSOs and STIs in the Convention processes is recorded along the implementation period of The Strategy.

Qualitative assessment

Is your country undertaking initiatives to increase the participation of CSOs and STIs in DLDD-related programmes and projects? Yes No

Provide a short description of actions taken at the international level to promote participation by CSOs and STIs in the Convention processes or any other complementary information.

The UK Department For International Development (DFID) supports a large number of programmes that work with partners such as scientific bodies and NGOs to engage in DLDD activities. These are not focussed on UNCCD itself but on programming and policy.

Examples include The Building Resilience for Adaptation to Climate Extremes and Disasters (BRACED) programme which supports partners across the African Sahel and in south Asia to find ways to make communities more resilient to shocks. While some of these approaches include appropriate technical solutions, there needs to be a renewed focus on addressing the fundamental causes of vulnerability. In the Sahel, chronic poverty drives vulnerability and is reinforced by gender disparities, poor governance, insecurity and conflict, and lack of respect for human rights, inadequate health provision and lack of education. Empowering women and girls, including economic empowerment, and addressing social exclusion and marginalisation will be critical for sustained economic growth.

Additionally DFID’s agriculture research programmes provide support to research partners on salinity management strategies in drylands. Much of this work is undertaken by CGIAR which aims to identify and develop resilient, diversified and more productive combinations of crop, livestock, rangeland, aquatic and agroforestry systems that increase productivity, reduce hunger and malnutrition, and improve quality of life for the rural poor. More information can be found at <http://drylandsystems.cgiar.org/>

Several CGIAR centres and research programmes also work on saline management strategies and salt tolerance. For example, IRRI is producing new rice varieties which are saline tolerant as well as undertaking research on salinity management in agriculture. (More information on this at <http://irri.org/our-work/research/rice-and-the-environment/drought-submergence-and-salinity-management>)

Arid Lands Support Programme

Operational objective 1: Advocacy, awareness raising and education

To improve the coping strategies for over 500,000 of the poorest people in Northern Kenya (Turkana, Wajir, Mandera and Marsabit counties) to help them to adapt to climate change and improve their livelihoods. The programme will also provide opportunities to support the poorest during drought, provide benefits for livestock insurance, increase average real value of assets owned by households, and will allow 64,000 beneficiaries to become less poor relative to non-beneficiaries in the four counties.

Enhancing resilience in Karamoja Uganda

To increase resilience to extreme climate and weather events in semi-arid Karamoja through strengthening nutrition programmes, livelihoods and food security for the vulnerable communities by December 2015 with an aim of reaching 200,000 people with improved food security through participation in public works programmes, 6,000 agro-pastoralists & pastoralists with access to improved animal nutrition, acute malnutrition reduced by treating 212,500 children under five and pregnant & lactating women and 800,000 cattle vaccinated against epidemics.

CARIAA - Collaborative Adaptation Research Initiative in Africa and Asia

Research to identify what works and what doesn't in terms of cost-effective and sustainable ways to improve the resilience and capacity to adapt to climate change of the poorest and most vulnerable people and communities in three climate change 'hot spots' – semi-arid regions of Africa and Central and South Asia; low-lying heavily populated deltas of Africa and South Asia and; densely populated river basins dependent on snow-pack or glaciers.

Operational objective 1: Advocacy, awareness raising and education

CONS-0-4

Number and type of DLDD-related initiatives of civil society organizations (CSOs) and science and technology institutions (STIs) in the field of education

Global target

A steady growth in the number of DLDD-related education initiatives undertaken by CSOs and STIs is recorded along the implementation period of The Strategy

Qualitative assessment

Is your country undertaking initiatives to increase the number of DLDD-related initiatives in the education sector implemented by CSOs and STIs at development assistance level? Yes No

Provide a short description of actions taken at development assistance level to increase the number of DLDD-related initiatives of CSOs and STIs in the field of education or any other complementary information.

DFID provides support for a large number of CSOs and STIs in the fields of agriculture, drylands and climate adaptation that may have relevance to this indicator. CARIIAA has a specific focus on building capacity of research institutions and tertiary education organisations in the field of climate adaptation in drylands but the numbers of initiatives are not finalised as this is an ongoing programme.

CONS-O-6

Number of partnership agreements established within the framework of the Convention between developed country Parties/United Nations and IGOs and affected country Parties
